In 2015, PFLAG National launched PFLAG Gives Back as an integral part of our biennial convention, positioning the program as a way to support the community where we were holding our event. Then, in 2017, PFLAG convention volunteers completed do-it-yourself projects to support local nonprofit organizations. And in 2018, PFLAG staff continued the tradition of giving back through their participation in ReconstruyeQ, an effort to rebuild LGBTQ+ and ally homes in Puerto Rico following Hurricane Maria.

In 2019, at the PFLAG National Convention, members and attendees took part in the third convention-based PFLAG Gives Back event. And, thanks to the generous support of the Subaru of America Foundation, Inc., we’re able to share this guide to PFLAG Gives Back events with you to develop volunteering events in your own community.

So now it’s your turn!

The tradition of PFLAG chapters giving back to the communities in which they live has always been part of our mission. We’re offering this guide as a way for you to build on and expand this tradition by spearheading volunteer projects where you are based.

In this guide, you will find a collection of ideas and instructions for projects that will help your chapter give back in a way that is responsive to your community’s needs while staying true to PFLAG’s mission. You’ll also find better practices, things to keep in mind, and tips for success.

It’s our hope that this guide will provide support and great ideas for your community-based projects, and that we’ll be able to expand our PFLAG Gives Back program, offering more organizing ideas and tips for success. But we need your help! Tell us about your PFLAG Gives Back projects so we can share more ideas and success stories to inspire even more people to participate. Send your stories and photos to PFLAG’s Chapter Engagement team (chapterservices@pflag.org).

As always, thank you for all that you do to make the communities where you live more inclusive and supportive of people who are LGBTQ+, their families, and their allies.

Together, we’re all #PFLAGProud!
Ready to change the world – or at least your community? Before you head out the door, take some time to strategize and ensure that you’ve got a plan (and budget) for your work.

1. Do your homework: It is important to be sure that the organizations you’re supporting have (or are) working toward LGBTQ+-inclusive programming and services. You can look up an organization’s nondiscrimination policy to ensure that sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression are part of their policy. If you can’t find an inclusive non-discrimination or diversity statement on an organization’s website, consider reaching out to learn more about their internal policies. If their policies are not inclusive, you might focus your efforts elsewhere. Maybe think about how you might help them get the right policies in place. For example, you could share sample policies or offer a panel presentation for their employees through your chapter’s speakers bureau.

2. Understand and be responsive to community needs: Most organizations that accept material donations will have a list available on their website of what they can and cannot accept, as well as their most sought-after items. They may also have details about specific times and locations where donations can be received. Be sure that your project is aligned with the needs of organizations prior to starting your project. Not sure what an organization needs? Reach out to them and find out the best way for you to help.

3. Can’t identify an organization? Consider checking in with the organization that owns the space where your chapter meets to determine if they have any volunteer needs, projects to be completed, or upcoming donation drives that you can support.

4. Consider your timing carefully: Some community needs are more keenly felt at different points throughout the year. For example, in communities where seasonal work is common, local food pantries often serve more families in the off-season, yet don’t see increased levels of support because the need is less visible at those times. Or, you may find that youth-serving organizations have a strong need for school supplies in November or March, when donors aren’t thinking about the start of a new term. Around the winter holidays, many organizations have toy and gift drives or serve hot meals more often. Have a conversation with someone at the organization to see if there’s a way that you can support them at their times of greatest need.

5. Craft a project plan and budget: Depending on your project, it may be simple, or you may be going for something more detailed. But no matter what you’re doing, develop an outline of what you’d like to do with key dates and deadlines, and create a budget to help meet your project needs. Be sure to share details about the project with chapter members, along with your timeline and any projected expenses. Be sure to update these documents as the project evolves so you have an accurate account of how the work happened that you can use for future event planning.

6. Be ready to represent PFLAG: No matter what kind of project you’re planning, make sure that members are ready to represent PFLAG while giving back to the community. Provide volunteers with PFLAG swag (including t-shirts, pins, stickers, etc.), prep them to talk about your chapter and how you serve the community, and be sure that at least one person is assigned to take pictures throughout the day. Those photos can be posted to social media, included in your chapter newsletter, or used as a part of a fundraising campaign! (And don’t forget to share your photos with PFLAG National on social media using tags like #PFLAGGivesBack, #PFLAG, and #EqualityStartsWithMe.)

CONCERNED ABOUT CHAPTER CAPACITY?

Don’t let a sense that you don’t have enough people shut down your PFLAG Gives Back project. There are ways to adapt projects no matter what the size of your chapter!

- If you’re looking for ways to start giving back, you could begin by sharing information about donation drives, volunteer opportunities, or projects that your community partners are working on. Include information in e-mail communications, in your chapter newsletter, and on social media to engage members and increase interest in giving back to the community.
- Still want to do a project with your chapter? Try one of the projects in this guide, but scale the project to a size that fits your group capacity. Or connect with a local community partner who might be hosting a volunteer opportunity and bring your PFLAG team to help.
Want an easy way to get started? Anyone can help collect and donate. Start here!

PFLAG GIVES BACK

Donation drives are a simple way to allow chapters to give back to their community. They’re also a great way to connect with other local organizations, build coalitions, and establish PFLAG as a trusted community resource.

Where could you go?

If you are doing a donation drive, consider all the places that might need supplies. A few examples of organizations and typical needs include:

- Local food pantries: Non-perishable food items (including spices and condiments), gift cards for local grocery stores, and fresh produce.
- Youth-serving organizations: School supplies, art supplies, unused toys and games, new clothing (including socks and underwear), and shoes.
- Public and school libraries: Multiple copies of LGBTQ+-inclusive titles for all ages.
- National/local diaper banks: Diapers of all sizes ranging from newborn to pull-ups.
- Emergency housing: Basic toiletries and personal hygiene supplies (including pads and tampons), gently used home goods, diapers, and toilet paper.
- Homeless shelters: All the items listed above as well as blankets and bedding, first aid supplies, and leisure goods including games and electronics.
- Animal shelters: Food and treats, kitty litter, water/food bowls, leashes, grooming tools, toys, towels, blankets, and cleaning supplies.
- Your meeting location: Ask what kinds of supplies would be helpful to collect.
Working out the details:
No matter what you choose to collect, be sure to answer the following questions to ensure maximum participation:

1. Are there ways to use the calendar to maximize your collection? For example, you could use spring cleaning season to collect gently used clothing, or maybe focus on the end of summer to collect hotel toiletries from road trips and vacations. Have chapter members who do frequent business travel? Ask them to bring unused hotel toiletries back from their trips.

2. How will details about the donation drive be communicated to your members? Will you share details during meetings? Post to social media? Include in e-mail communications? Announce at monthly meetings?

3. How long will you collect donations? Think about giving people enough time to get the word out and contribute.

4. Where will the donations be collected? Is the space secure? Who will keep track and/or collect from donation sites?

5. Who will be responsible for delivering the donations to the organization that you’ve selected? Be sure that you arrange a delivery time with recipient organizations.

6. What can you do to be sure that the organization receiving your donation knows about PFLAG, your chapter, and the support and services that you offer? Is there any chapter literature you can include? (Or consider leaving behind a PFLAG Gives Back card that you can purchase at the PFLAG Bookstore.)

7. Does your chapter need a receipt or acknowledgment for tax or year-end reporting? Be sure you have your paperwork in order.

HOW WILL YOU SHOW YOUR PFLAG PRIDE?

T-shirts? Tank tops? Sweatshirts? Hoodies? Tote bags? Phone cases? Coffee mugs? No matter how you want to show your PFLAG pride, the PFLAG Shop has the products to help you do it with style.

Your purchases help support PFLAG’s life-saving work and make showing people that you’re #PFLAGproud simple.

WANT TO GET OUT OF YOUR CHAPTER MEETINGS AND INTO THE COMMUNITY? THIS IS FOR YOU!

Out of your chapter meeting and into your community! On-site volunteer projects for groups are a great way to connect with important organizations, get visibility for your chapter, and create a space for people to work together in a new way.

Not sure where to start? We’ve got suggestions.

On-Site Project Examples:
- Preparing and serving a meal at a local homeless shelter
- Sorting, organizing, and distributing food at a local food pantry
- Helping clean cages and feed animals at a local animal shelter
- Serving as youth mentors for a partner organization
- Reading to students as part of school literacy days
- Acting as course marshals at a fun run, 5K, or marathon
- Supporting a partner organization’s conference or event
- Participating in and/or hosting fun run, softball tournament, or charity walk
- Building maintenance and beautification projects such as painting or gardening
- Maintaining local parks, trails, and community gardens
- Participating in a river or waterway cleanup day
- Cleaning up after a community event or parade
- Adopting and maintaining a highway or bus stop
- Participating in a home build
Working Out the Details:

On-site projects are a great way for your chapter to demonstrate your commitment to serving your whole community, as well as meaningfully connect with coalition partners.

Considering an on-site volunteer projects for groups? Here are a few things to keep in mind:

1. You may need to reach out to more than one organization to find the right fit. Some organizations won’t have volunteer projects for groups available. Don’t get discouraged.

2. Check qualifications. Organizations—especially those that work with youth—may require a volunteer application, background check, and/or volunteer training before your group can participate.

3. Consider a donation, too. If you have a very large group (10 or more volunteers) consider making a small monetary donation to account for staff time, supplies, and other expenses associated with hosting a group.

4. Think long-term. Consider volunteer projects for groups that can become long-term opportunities and relationship builders (e.g., PFLAG volunteers prepare and serve a meal on the third Thursday of every month).

5. Share day-of-logistics in advance. For example, your group may want to meet up and travel together, you may need to pack lunch or snacks, folks should know what to wear, etc.

6. Speaking of what to wear...don’t forget your PFLAG swag! Encourage volunteers to wear their PFLAG shirts, pins, etc. as a way to create visibility and start conversations. Help prep your volunteer team by making sure they can give a few quick points about your chapter and its work so they’re ready to chat if someone asks. Interested in what’s available? FEELING CRAFTY? WANT TO SHOW OFF YOUR CREATIVE SKILLS? DIY PROJECTS ARE FOR YOU!

Do-it-yourself (DIY) projects for local nonprofit organizations are a great way to help chapter members feel more involved and connected to the cause they are supporting. They can also be a meaningful team building activity for your chapter or a great way to include coalition partners in your work.

DIY Project Examples:

- Project: Create cat toys
  To benefit: Local animal shelter

  See page 20 for the project instruction sheet.
This is by no means a comprehensive list of do-it-yourself projects that your chapter could organize to support organizations in your community. Get creative!

- Do you crochet or knit? Local hospitals often accept baby blanket donations.

- Looking for a way to give back at Pride festivities in town? Make rainbow dog booties to distribute or set up a food and water station at your booth.

- Love books? Help out a local preschool or grammar school by collecting gently used children’s books and spending time together cleaning the covers, removing scribbles, and taping torn pages.

- Want to show support for veterans? Place American flags on graves at national and state veteran’s cemeteries.

The possibilities are endless! Look at your community needs to help identify a great project.

Working Out the Details:

If you’re thinking about planning a DIY event for your chapter, consider the following:

1. Could you build a DIY project into one of your already scheduled chapter meetings?

2. There are costs associated with purchasing supplies. This could be a fundraising or sponsorship opportunity for your chapter.

3. You will need day-of support from other chapter members for set up, project support, and clean up. This is a great opportunity to learn a lot about your team and to grow together.

4. DIY events should be fun! Play music, provide snacks, encourage folks to get to know each other better as they work.

5. Be sure that you know—in advance—where, when, and how the products that you create can be delivered to the organization you’re supporting.
